Action To Oppose Increase May Be Taken At Joint Meeting Monday Night

The course which El Dorado County shippers will pursue in opposing the proposed increase in shipping charges, which is pending before the state railroad commission, will be outlined at a meeting at Hotel Raffles tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

Directors of the county Chamber of Commerce and the executive board of the Placerville Merchants' Association will meet in joint session as representatives of principal shippers who would be affected by the proposed increases.

The increases proposed, it is understood, concern principally shipments in small lots, less than car load or less than truck load quantities, and would apply to all phases of transportation, rail, truck and boat.

The proposed boost has been opposed by the chamber of commerce and the merchants' association by resolution and both bodies have received word from the Railroad Commission that further hearing on the matter has been continued until October 13 at San Francisco.

Both bodies also have been advised that they should, to receive consideration at the hearing, have a representative before the commission to give voice to their opposition. Mere resolutions will not be considered.

It is this phase of the matter with which the meeting tonight will concern itself.

Camino Center Meets Tuesday

Coloma Launches Activity For Year With Meeting On Monday

The series of October Farm Center meetings which was opened Friday night with the North Side center meeting at Penobscot, continues Monday night with the initial meeting of the Coloma-Gold Hill center for this season, at Coloma.

Camino center meets Tuesday night at the clubhouse. Summit meets on Thursday and Rescue on Friday night. The Soil Conservation Service features the educational and entertainment program for all October center meetings with motion pictures and speakers to explain the work of the service in this and other communities.

In addition, a scenic motion picture of Canada is being shown and Carroll Miller is discussing the control of the codling moth in those centers where the topic is of general interest.

"2-TIME LOSER" JAILED FOR 100 DAYS FOR DRUNK DRIVING

H. Stowe, 42, of Fair Oaks, became the first person to be arrested in El Dorado County for a second offense of driving while drunk when he was taken into custody Sunday by officer Vladimir Sabich, of the state highway patrol.

Stowe had a previous drunken driving conviction against him and had gained a probationary license to drive again, under an act of the last Legislature which became effective August 27.

Upon his arrest, it was found he had received the license about fifteen days ago.

Before Justice of the Peace W. G. Taylor at Shingle on Monday morning, Stowe was found guilty and fined $200 with the alternative of 100 days in jail. He went to jail.

COUGARS BLANK PRESTON IN OPENING GAME OF YEAR; WIN 16-0

First Game On Home Field Will Pit High School Eleven Against Placer Junior College Reserves Next Saturday Afternoon; Backfield Shows Power

Coach Lawrence A. Brown shifted his high school grid machine into gear at one Saturday, and the Cougars, unleashing a sound running attack and a stubborn defense, rolled up a 16-0 win over the hitherto undefeated Preston School of Industry eleven, in the first appearance of the El Dorado team on the grid-iron this year.

Seemingly the strongest eleven that the local coach has put on the field in recent years, the Cougar backfield, led by Bruce Buhert, who did the bulk of the ball carrying, rolled up 153 yards from scrimmage against the Preston team, which had up until Saturday been scored on but once in four games.

Through a fighting Cougar line, the Preston boys gained but twenty-two yards for their afternoon's work. Playing in a steady rain and on a soggy field, the Cougars had complete control of the battle, over three-fourths of the contest being played in Preston territory.

After a scoreless first quarter that saw a battle of punts with the Cougars gaining ground on each kick, the locals crossed the Preston goal midway in the second quarter. Taking the ball on the Preston 30-yard line, a series of runs brought the Cougars up to the

LOWELL HALL TAKEN TO SAN QUENTIN PRISON ON MONDAY

Lowell D. Hall, sentenced Friday to a term of from one to 50 years at San Quentin prison following his conviction on charges of incest, was taken to the prison on Monday in the custody of Sheriff George M. Smith.

Sentence was passed on Hall by Judge E. N. Rector, to whom a jury had reported his guilt following a Superior Court trial. Hall's attorney, C. W. Pearson, has indicated his intention to appeal from the conviction.

Summit Blanketed By Light Snowfall

The rain of Saturday afternoon, which covered lower El Dorado County and the lower county as far west as the coast, left a light fall of snow along the summit of the Sierra.

Lacking official reports, there were unofficial rumors which say the depth was anywhere from three and one-half inches to six inches.

Leak Springs forest lookout reported two and one-half inches Saturday evening and unofficial reports said the blanket extended as far west as Wright's Lake.

Forest fire lookouts had their first day of relaxed vigilance since last spring.

Chris Escobar was in town Monday from El Dorado.

Mountain Quarries Man Held After Row

C. Robles, of the Mountain Quarries, was lodged in the county jail Sunday by Sheriff George M. Smith and Deputy William Bathurst for investigation after the two officers had been called to the district by reports of a serious brawl.

They were relieved upon arriving to find nothing more serious than a few black eyes and bumped heads.

Robles, said to be on parole from Sacramento County following conviction for voluntary manslaughter, was taken into custody and probably will be returned to Sacramento County.

REHEARSAL FOR SHOW ENDS

Lions' Club Thespians Go Through Paces Tuesday For Final Check-Up

If you think you notice that one of the county's business men is "putting on airs" as he walks down the street, don't feel alarmed.

Although his conduct may warrant a suspicion that he may be, for the moment, "teched in the head," the probabilities are that he is merely rehearsing his part for the Lions' Club show, "When Men Marry," to be presented Thursday and Friday night at the high school auditorium.

Final rehearsals of the ensemble are to be held Tuesday night and reports have it that some of the cast are "brushing up" on their parts as they go about their daily lives.

It's an all-male cast and some of the players take the part of women. There's Louis Armes, for instance—he's Mae West!

Louis, ordinarily, sails ahead on an even keel, but since he's taken up theatricals, you can see he's tall, dark and handsome. In fact, you can't help but see it.

"When Men Marry" is in three acts, the first of which is a school days convulsion with Bill Hays as the lady school teacher.

The second act is a sorority party ten years later (why, Lucy, you haven't change a bit) and the third act is the marriage of the principals with Leo Ench as the blushing bride, and Henry Lefevre as the bridegroom.

Reuel Whigam is the chaplain and "little" Marshall Kelly is the ring bearer.

Specialty numbers will be heard heard throughout the program.

Justice Black Takes Seat

Supreme Court Takes Motion To Challenge Appointment Under Advisement

WASHINGTON (UP)—Albert Levitt, resigned justice department official, today offered to the Supreme Court his motion seeking leave to challenge in a formal court action the constitutionality of appointment of Justice Hugo L. Black. The court took no immediate action on the motion.

The court then recessed at 12:25 p. m. until next Monday.

The Supreme Court opened its 1937-38 session at 12:02 p. m. Justice Hugo L. Black, the court's new member, took his seat upon the bench with his eight colleagues without formality or successful challenge.

Black, garbed in the traditional black robes of Supreme Court office, followed his eight senior colleagues through the rich red drapes of the high bench and went quickly to his seat at the far right of Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes. To the crowded chambers—jammed with spectators, high officials of government and attorneys—the chief justice announced immediately that a new member of the court—Hugo L. Black—had been appointed and had already taken his oath of office.

Al Brewster Displays 3-Point Buck

Al Brewster, of Placerville, whose prowess as a salmon fisherman has become a legend of the Klamath, threatens to set a record equally as good as a deer hunter.

Mr. Brewster was downtown Saturday afternoon to report his enrollment as one of the season's successful deer hunters, with a three-pointer.

"This is off the record," he reported, "but I had laid the gun down while I dropped to my right knee to tie the lace of my left shoe."

"The gun was pointed ahead of me, as any good sportsman never points the gun toward himself."

"I had just tied the bow and picked up the gun as I arose to my feet when the rifle was accidentally discharged, and there within two feet and a half of me lay this deer."

"He walked right into it."

Farm Advisor Ivan Lilley, Dr. Lester B. Rantz and William Wilkinson returned over the week-end from a week's fishing on the Rogue River. They report great sport.

NEWSPAPER WEEK IS PROCLAIMED

Governor Merriam, State Chamber Of Commerce Note Observance

SACRAMENTO—This is Newspaper Week in California.

The third annual observance of Newspaper Week is sponsored by 350 newspapers, whose publishers are members of the California Newspaper Publishers' Association, which inaugurated the observance.

Public attention is directed to the observance in a proclamation by Governor Merriam paying tribute to the newspapers of the state.

Throughout the week, in the various communities in which the member papers are located, the observance will take on various forms. The purpose of the week is to call attention to the public service which the newspapers of the state are rendering in their respective communities.

Following issuance of the proclamation by Governor Merriam, the president of the state chamber of commerce, A. J. McFadden, issued a statement expressing commendation for the observance.

President McFadden cited the many instances in which the California daily and weekly newspapers and periodicals have taken a leading position in the advancement of our state's welfare. The campaign for the better administration of law, the program for tax economy and the control of governmental expenditures, the orderly development of the state highway system, the saving of government, were listed as just a few of the many cases where the California newspapers exerted their influence for the best interests of the state.

He stated that the California State Chamber of Commerce was glad to recognize the importance of the press, and to join with the California Newspaper Publishers Association in the observance of California Newspaper Week.

TWO HUNTERS WOUNDED IN FREAK HUNTING ACCIDENT

SACRAMENTO, (UP)—Charles Staples, 48, and his son, Laverne, 24, of San Francisco, were reported in "fair" condition at Sutter Hospital today following a freak hunting accident in which both men were struck by the same bullet, one of them twice.

The accident occurred in the Lumberyard district southeast of Placerville. Investigating officers said the bullet was fired by Charles D. Pierce, of Berkeley, a son-in-law of the elder Staples, who mistook the tips of rifles carried by the men for deer horns protruding from the heavy brush.

The missile hit Laverne Staples in the hand and split, one piece entering his leg and the other hitting his father in the body.

Pierce carried his father-in-law to camp and summoned an ambulance from Jackson. Young Staples was able to walk back. Both men were placed in the ambulance and rushed to Sacramento.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Smith and son, of Rubicon Point, came down Saturday to visit the former's uncle, Forest Supervisor Edwin F. Smith, and family. Warren returned to his duties Sunday evening and Mrs. Smith and the baby will spend several days here.

SCOUTS SET FOR FUND DRIVE

Judge J. F. Pullen To Launch Financial Campaign Tuesday At Lions' Luncheon

The "kick-off" in the 1937 campaign for Boy Scout financial support in the county will take place Tuesday noon at the regular luncheon of Placerville Lions when Judge J. F. Pullen of Sacramento, will be the principal speaker.

According to J. H. Palmer, chairman of the campaign, all workers are ready for the opening gun and it is believed that the drive will be concluded before the close of the week.

In addition to Judge Pullen, it is expected that Sumner Mering, Sacramento attorney and well-known leader in boys' work, will be a Lions luncheon speaker.

The campaign, which will give El Dorado County opportunity to make its contribution to the budget of the Golden Empire Council of Boy Scouts, through which the six Boy Scout organizations of the county are administered, has no set "quota" and will seek to raise the largest amount possible.

Anyone who is not contacted by a representative of the Scout committee may make his contribution directly to Chairman Palmer.

Workers in the campaign are W. T. Henderson, who will be the representative at Diamond Springs; M. H. Vaught who will contact the large companies outside of Placerville; Cecil George, whose territory is the Wilson auto agency and Garden Valley and Georgetown; William Hays, for the lumber yards and the fruit houses; J. G. Leonard, for the oil companies and public utilities; E. W. Zueger and C. E. Barker for the business district above the bell tower; Dr. Lester Rantz and T. F. Lewis, for the business district below the bell tower.

Pioneer Day Held Sunday

Chicken Dinner And Program Mark Observance At Shakespeare Clubhouse

The annual celebration of Pioneer Day, wherein the members of Marguerite Parlor, No. 12, and of Placerville Parlor, No. 9, N. S. G. W., honor the pioneers of the county, was held on Sunday with a dinner and program at the Shakespeare clubhouse.

The observance was arranged at the direction of Mrs. Gladys Akin and Victor Leonardi, the presiding officers of the two parlors, and the chicken dinner was prepared and served to an attendance of approximately sixty by the members of Marguerite Parlor.

Program for the day had been arranged under the chairmanship of Mrs. Lena Rantz and opened with an address of welcome by Mrs. Akin followed by a song, "The Days of '49," by a chorus of Native Daughters. Mrs. Akin played a piano medley of old-time songs and Miss Jane McCusker gave a reading, "Old Black Joe" was a song selection by A. W. Fuller and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carpenter played, on violin and piano, a medley of old-time numbers.

Victor Leonardi, president of the Native Sons, spoke briefly in greeting following which Miss Mary O'Donnell gave a most interesting talk concerning early days in the county. Community singing of old-time songs and a quadrille, with music by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Carpenter, concluded the afternoon.

As is their custom, the members of the two orders participating, provided transportation for their guests to and from the affair.

City Council Meets Tonight

The regular October meeting of the city council will be held at city hall tonight. In addition to the usual routine business, the council will take up the matter of the sewer system improvement and will take formal action accepting the PWA offer of a grant of $34,767 for the project.

Charles MacLaughlin was in town Monday morning from Somerset.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Gonelli and son, Albert, spent Sunday at Sacramento visiting their son and brother, Caesar, Jr., who is in school there.

NOT SO NEUTRAL

By JANE VOILES

Do you know the lady who distrusts people who talk about books? "You would think that folks who talk about books didn't know any people to talk about," she declares in her superior way. Well, for her benefit, we will say something about people (who are certain to write a book or get into one anyway).

We heard Yehudi Menuhin in his first concert after some years of rest and practice. It was his first appearance in "talks." We hadn't heard him since his days in velvet knee pants. He is the same sturdy squarish youngster. His aloofness disturbed the audience. Yehudi has not cultivated the art of smiling and an audience loves a smile. Perhaps the thing that endeared Madame Schumann-Heink to her audience was her expansive smile. Does any one remember as far back as the days of the pianist De Bachmann? We heard him while he was on his last concert tour. Fortunate were those who sat in the first rows of the orchestra. De Bachmann took them into his confidence and explained the meaning of passages from Chopin and Schumann, in the most winning way. Yet Yehudi plays like an immortal.

We heard Harold Baldwin who returned from the Orient before the catastrophic happenings of the last few weeks tell about his shopping tours. "Shopping in the Orient demands a different technique," he asserts. "Find the article you want and then assure the salesman that it is the very last thing you would ever think of buying. This establishes the proper psychological atmosphere."

Such bargains as Mr. Baldwin triumphantly displayed. Pure silk at fifty cents a yard. Chinese silk is of a better grade than Japanese. Loom made lace table cloths of large size for three dollars. Kimonos and haori coats in many colors and designs and yards of brocades that can be put to as many grand uses.

As Mr. Baldwin displayed his goods, he gave interesting bits of information. Japan is about the size of Montana and has one half as many people as the United States. The Japanese people were full of energy, always up and doing. The Chinese were apathetic, squatting on the streets, watching for something to happen. There is more dirt and squalor in China because water is scarce. A large percentage of the children have skin disease. In Japan water is plentiful with spigots on the streets for public use.

"Eels are a favorite Japanese delicacy," Mr. Baldwin said. "The Chinese, however, are more partial to eggs that have been stored underground for almost a year."

These are memories of a happier day in the Orient. What next for poor China?

If you are interested in the negro and his development, you will want to read "Their Eyes Were Watching God" by Zora Neale Hurston, a negro writer whose work has the unmistakable mark of genius. The fact that negroes are developing a cultural life of their own is coming more and more into the public notice. We are all familiar with the names of Roland Hayes, Paul Robeson, and Marian Anderson in the realm of music. Countee Cullen is writing fine poetry and the short stories of Samuel Langhorne appear in the first class magazines. One of our first American poets was a negro from Massachusetts, Phillis Wheatley who published a volume of verse in London in 1773.

"Their Eyes Were Watching God" is not a religious novel as the title might suggest. It is primarily the story of how Janie who has some white blood in her veins works out her destiny according to her own lights. "Two things everybody's got tuh do fuh theyselves," Janie said. "They got tuh go tuh God, and they got tuh find out about livin' fuh theyselves."

Janie is almost illiterate but as she grows from a girl to a woman she gains a little wisdom for herself. Reared by a grandmother who wants to see her safe from the temptations that beset a pretty colored girl, Janie is married to a middle-aged prosaic farmer. She leaves him for the go-getter Joe Stark who lets her bask in his reflected glory but does not make her happy. After his death she goes off with the shiftless Tea Cake. This sounds rather sordid in outline but Miss Hurston makes a fine story out of it. She writes with her own racy vein which isn't at all like the talk in a minstrel show or "Amos 'n' Andy." At times her dialogue fairly sparkles. For the prudish ear, her humor sometimes takes too rollicking a turn, however, when you judge it in its proper setting, it is never offensive.

There is poetry in the very freshness of her expressions. Approaching night is described—"it's sort of duskin' down dark," a portly woman "was a wind on the ocean." Tea Cake who was Miss Hurston's favorite character comes in for description of this kind—"Spices hung about him—he seemed to be crushing aromatic herbs with every step he took."

Tea Cake is the jovial guitar-playing negro, living with that gay improvidence typical of his race. Only the present mattered, "next month and next year were other times." In her love for Tea Cake against whom all of her friends warned her, Janie finds fulfillment. As Elizabeth Browning said to Robert Browning is as women have said to men since time immemorial—"God snatched me out of de fire through you and Ah oves you and feels glad."

Miss Hurston knows her people and her country. Her book is authentic and just a little different.

A reader supplies us with the following information about "Castles in Spain." Brewer's Dictionary of Phrase and Fable says, "Fashionable adventurers in France used to impose on the credulous and get money and social advantages out of them by telling tales of their Castles in Spain, which, needless to say, they did not possess. A Castle in Spain is a splendid thing of fancy or hope but wholly without any real existence, so-called because Spain has no castles."

DUKE AND WALLY TO VISIT IN U. S.; MAY SETTLE IN AMERICA

LONDON (Copyright, 1937, By United Press)—The government has avoided an open break with the Duke of Windsor by giving him permission to visit the United States with his Baltimore-born bride, it was understood today.

Permission for the visit was given most reluctantly, it was said in quarters close to Buckingham Palace, to end the rumors—which here were interpreted almost as threats—that the Duke might return to Britain.

The public commented today that he and his Duchess might settle down in the United States eventually. There seemed some reason for belief that any such decision might win government approval—if for no other reason than the United States is 3,000 miles from Britain.

Up and Down Broadway

By JACK GAVER
United Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, (UP)—If it is true to say that the death of Osgood Perkins has robbed the American theater — well, make it the world theater—of one of its finest actors, it is nevertheless true, and what else is there to say? He will be missed, not just this season but in succeeding seasons, as long as there are playgoers to remember his many fine portrayals.

Perkins died in harness in Washington a short time after the premiere of "Susan and God," in which he had the male lead opposite Gertrude Lawrence. According to the Washington critics, it was another triumph for the tall, thin, nervous man who will be best remembered to the hard-boiled city editor of "The Front Page."

"Susan and God," was, and still is, bound for Broadway. There are reports that it is up to the top-drawer best of its author, Rachael Crothers. I hope that this is so, but I am afraid that when I see it I will be thinking mostly of Perkins and how he would have been in the play. I envy those fortunate few hundred in Washington who saw him in his last role.

Perkins was not a great star in the sense that we customarily think of great stars in the theater — such as Booth, Skinner and Barrymore. But as an actor he had to bow to none. He was fine in comedy or tragedy, at home in rowdy or quiet roles.

They say that the season just starting promises to be an excellent one, but however good it may turn out to be it would have been better had Perkins been a part of it.

The Mercury Theater will make its bow this fall as a popular-price effort to prevent unusual productions such as those with which its chief movers—the actor-director Orson Welles and director John Houseman—have been identified in the past, chiefly last season when they ran one branch of the Federal Theater with resounding critical and popular success.

Both are young men of more than ordinary talents who believe that they can do big things in this independent venture with a modified repertory system in which two bills will be offered each week. From the plans they have laid, it appears that they are going to try to give us the best, and if that isn't good enough to keep the venture alive financially then the loss will be the playgoers' and not theirs.

The first production will be Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar," probably in modern dress. The Elizabethan comedy, "Shoemakers' Holiday," Thomas Dekker; Webster's horror play, "The Duchess of Malfi;" Shaw's "Heartbreak House," and Shakespeare's "King John" and the other productions promised.

Among those who will have leading roles in these productions are that fine actress, Aline MacMahon, Welles, Geo. Coulouris, Eric Wolcott and Martin Gabel, a promising lineup, indeed.

The Mercury's top price will be $2 but subscription prices are available for all or part of the program.

A feature of the enterprise will be a Sunday night Worklight Theater, where experimental work will be done on new works, including ballets and music as well as dramas.

its own record for subscribers this season with 95,000 in six cities—New York, Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Baltimore. This makes it the largest subscription theater in the world.

This — the Guild's 20th subscription season—will see 30,000 subscribers in New York, which is capacity for six weeks, as long as the Guild permits its subscription run to extend for each play. Last year there were 25,000 subscribers here.

But it is on the road, in the five cities mentioned, that the most spectacular increase has occurred. All five cities have already broken the records for last year, and there are still weeks to go.

The total last year for the road was 38,138, and it is expected that this year the figure will exceed 65,000.

Boston, with 10,000 subscribers, has tripled last year's record, Chicago, with 12,000, shows an increase of 50 per cent, and Philadelphia, with 60,000, is 30 per cent ahead, with prospects of increasing this to 40 per cent before the subscription season closes. Washington shows unusually strong gains with 4,000 which is double what it had last year at this time. Pittsburgh has 3,500, also almost double last year.

3 OUT OF 4 BUSINESS GIRLS PREFER HOME TO CAREER

MINNEAPOLIS — Business girls are rapidly losing interest in reducing diets, although three out of four prefer marriage to a business career, according to a study of approximately 2,600 "white-collar" workers sampled from 22 cities by Northwestern National Life Insurance Company.

Of the 1,286 feminine office and professional workers who furnished detailed reports of their health records and habits, only 58 had undergone a reducing regime during the preceding twelve months, and another 75 planned to take such a diet. A total of 147 were 15 pounds or more overweight; 717 were within normal weight range for their height; 392 were underweight. The average height of the girls in the study was five feet four inches; their average weight was 125.6 pounds, which while conforming with insurance health standards, would rate as fairly solid compared to Worth and Patou mannequins.

Almost exactly 75 per cent of the girls admitted that they would prefer marriage and home life to a business career.

Dr. and Mrs. T. E. Jones were among the visitors at Sacramento on Friday evening.

Cougars Beat Preston

three yard stripe and from that point Buhert went over on an off-tackle play for the first El Dorado score. Buhert on a line buck made the conversion, and El Dorado had a 7-0 lead at half time.

Keeping the ball well into enemy territory, the Cougars took a 9-0 lead by scoring a safety in the third quarter after a Preston back had been downed by Ward after a fumble.

Late in the fourth quarter Preston, in an effort to score took to the air. A Preston back tossed the ball from his own ten yard line on an attempted short pass, and again Buhert stepped into the picture by intercepting the ball on the 19-yard line and with perfect blocking on the part of his team mates raced that distance for a touchdown. Ward tossed a pass to Jim Schroth for the conversion.

Well pleased, though not entirely satisfied with the Cougar performance, Brown this week is touching up the weak points of his team in preparation for the battle at Bennett Park Saturday against the Placer Junior College reserves.

The Cougar line-up Saturday was: Jim Schroth RE; F.E. Singleton, RT; Lad Quiberg, RG; Stan Beach, C; Gordon Blair, LG; Hardie Tatum, LT; Chester Carsten, LE; Bobby Boggs, LHB; Ken Ward, RHB; Stan Gardner, FB; Bruce Buhert, QB; substitution, Edison Shinn for Blair.

Score by quarters:
El Dorado 0-7-2-7 18.
